

Issue - 43 1st August 2014

Women | Leadership

A Global Women's Leadership Forum in Australia

More than 125 women credit union leaders from 24 countries gathered in Gold Coast, Australia, yesterday for the 2014 Global Women's Leadership Forum, held in partnership with Australian Women in Mutuals during World Council's World Credit Union Conference, to discuss the advancement of credit union women in leadership. Participants heard from renowned experts on vocal intelligence, about strengthening women's verbal and nonverbal communication skills. A research on harnessing the art of face-to-face communication to improve women's leadership effectiveness in this digital age. Through an interactive discussion, qualities of leaders-both men and women alike were discussed. More

Empowering Future Women Leaders in Pacific

What a leader looks like and the importance of women's political participation will be the focus on two events run by UN Women in Honiara this week in partnership with VOIS Blong Mere and US Embassy. Samoa's Electoral Commissioner will take part in both the two-day Empowerment Series and a week-long Transformational Leadership workshop with potential female political candidates. Both events are integral parts of UN Women's Project and are made possible with funding from the European Union. "Using both women leaders and male allies for this series shows audiences that gender equality and women's empowerment in political participation are not just issues of concern for women. They are development issues and, most importantly, human rights issues. More

Leading Thinkers and Top CSR Stakeholders to meet in Manila.

Leading thinkers and practitioners from business, government and social enterprises will converge in Manila, Philippines on September 2-3, 2014 for the 13th Asian Forum on Corporate Social Responsibility (AFCSR), A Asia's leading platform for CSR thought leadership and practice. The opening keynote address will be presented by H.E. Dr. Jose Ramos-Horta, Nobel Peace Laureate, Former President of Timor-Leste. The 2014 AFCSR carries the theme "Building Resilient Communities: How Business, Government and Social Enterprises can Work Together." The conference aims to tackle key questions that include: How do resilient communities come about? What can experiences of different countries stricken by natural calamity and other disasters teach us? What role does CSR play? How can business, government and social enterprises rethink the way we find solutions to the big challenges of our time? More

American Women's Leadership Conference

American Women's Leadership Conference announces its 2014 program themed "Women Inspiring Women," will be held Aug. 6 & 7 at the MGM Grand Conference Center in Las Vegas. Award-winning TV journalist Soledad O'Brien will kick off as the keynote speaker. Attendees will also get up close and personal with CNN International anchor Natalie Allen, who will emcee the event. On Aug. 6, Allen will moderate a lively discussion panel profiling "Women in Leadership." Top women executives slated for the panel are Pat Mulroy, former general manager of the Las Vegas Valley Water District; Wendy Davidson, President of U.S. Specialty Channels at The Kellogg Company; and Jean Birch, former President of IHOP Restaurants and Romano's Macaroni Grill. More

How Women Can Balance Strong Leadership with Authenticity: Career Advise

As women, we face unique challenges as leaders, whether we work in the corporate world or as business owners. There seems to be a large chasm between female leaders who too easily sacrifice authority, and iron-fisted women who never budge once their minds are made up. Unfortunately, neither approach is effective in a long-term leadership position. There are many aspects of leadership, but the core question is this: as strong and capable women, how can we lead without being labeled bossy, b*tchy, or worse? More

11 Things Every Leader Must Learn

Leadership is one of those pinnacle topics that everyone has their hands on. It doesn't matter where you work, what you do, or where you plan on going in life—we all lead something. The real question is, how great of a leader are you? These 11 points are impeccable to great anyone looking to develop great leadership. 1. You will never know everything. 2. Never turn down an opportunity to learn. 3. People should always be put above procedure. 4. Your mistakes are learning opportunities. 5. Leadership begins when I can let go of myself, and allow God to lead through me. 6. Integrity carries more weight than my gifting. 7. The day you stop learning is the day you should stop leading. 8. You can always learn from the people around you. 9. It is vital for you to have older/wiser accountability. (Someone who's been doing this longer than you) 10. The way you respond to destruction carries more weight than the way you respond to victory. 11. The way you live your everyday life is just as important as the way you lead a group or team. —Jarridwilson.com

You May click for more

To Build A Great Corporate Culture, Start With Your Strongest Link

Who's in charge: Why aren't there more women in leadership roles?

Leadership Matters: The Dual Role of Leader and Teacher

Why do women remain invisible, in spite of their presence?

The Language of Leadership: 5 Actions To Transform

UN Leadership on LGBT Rights

Message for Leaders

“Leadership and Learning are Indispensable to each other”

John. F. Kenne

Facebook

Email

Google Plus

Website